

24 Fragments

ALLWRITE!

15.2

Every sentence must have a subject and a verb and must express a complete thought. A word group that lacks a subject or a verb and does not express a complete thought is a fragment. Following are the most common types of fragments that people write:

- 1 Dependent-word fragments
- 2 -ing and to fragments
- 3 Added-detail fragments
- 4 Missing-subject fragments

Once you understand what specific kinds of fragments you might write, you should be able to eliminate them from your writing. The following pages explain all four types.

Dependent-Word Fragments

Some word groups that begin with a dependent word are fragments. Following is a list of common dependent words. Whenever you start a sentence with one of these words, you must be careful that a fragment does not result.

Dependent Words

after	if, even if	when, whenever although, though	in order that	where, wherever as	since	whether
because	that, so that	which, whichever
before	unless	while even though	until	who how	what, whatever	whose fragments are ~~dependent~~ ^{subordinate clause} clauses.

In the example below, the word group beginning with the dependent word after is a fragment:

After I cashed my paycheck, I treated myself to dinner.

A dependent statement—one starting with a dependent word like after—cannot stand alone. It depends on another statement to complete the thought. After I cashed my paycheck is a dependent statement. It leaves us hanging. We expect to find out, in the same sentence, what happened after the writer cashed the check. When a writer does not follow through and complete a thought, a fragment results. To correct the fragment, simply follow through and complete the thought:

After I cashed my paycheck, I treated myself to dinner.

Remember, then, that dependent statements by themselves are fragments. They must be attached to a statement that makes sense standing alone.

Here are two other examples of dependent-word fragments.

I won't leave the house. Until I hear from you.

Rick finally picked up the socks. That he had thrown on the floor days ago.

Until I hear from you is a fragment; it does not make sense standing by itself. We want to know in the same statement what cannot happen until I hear from you. The writer must complete the thought. Likewise, That he had thrown on the floor days ago is not in itself a complete thought. We want to know in the same statement what that refers to.

How to Correct a Dependent-Word Fragment

In most cases you can correct a dependent-word fragment by attaching it to the sentence that comes after it or the sentence that comes before it:

After I cashed my paycheck, I treated myself to dinner.

(The fragment has been attached to the sentence that comes after it.)

I won't leave the house until I hear from you.

(The fragment has been attached to the sentence that comes before it.)

Rick finally picked up the socks that he had thrown on the floor days ago.

(The fragment has been attached to the sentence that comes before it.)

Another way of correcting a dependent-word fragment is simply to eliminate the dependent word by rewriting the sentence.

I cashed my paycheck and then treated myself to dinner.

I will wait to hear from you.

He had thrown them on the floor days ago.

Notes

- a Use a comma if a dependent word group comes at the beginning of a sentence (see also page 569):

After I cashed my paycheck, I treated myself to dinner.

However, do not generally use a comma if the dependent word group comes at the end of a sentence.

I won't leave the house until I hear from you.

Rick finally picked up the socks that he had thrown on the floor days ago.

- b Sometimes the dependent words who, that, which, or where appear not at the very start but near the start of a word group. A fragment often results:

I drove slowly past the old brick house. The place where I grew up.

The place where I grew up is not in itself a complete thought. We want to know in the same statement where was the place the writer grew up. The fragment can be corrected by attaching it to the sentence that comes before it:

I drove slowly past the old brick house, the place where I grew up.

Activity 1

Turn each of the following dependent word groups into a sentence by adding a complete thought. Use a comma after the dependent word group if a dependent word starts the sentence. Note the examples.

Examples Although I felt miserable

Although I felt miserable, I tried to smile for the photographer.

The man who found my wallet

The man who found my wallet returned it the next day.

1 If I don't get a raise soon

2. Because it was raining

3. When I heard the news

4. Because I couldn't find the car keys

5. The restaurant that we tried

Activity 2

Underline the dependent-word fragment in each item. Then rewrite the items, correcting each fragment by attaching it to the sentence that comes before or the sentence that comes after it—whichever sounds more natural. Use a comma after the dependent word group if it starts the sentence.

1. Whenever I spray deodorant. My cat arches her back. She thinks she is hearing a hissing enemy.

2. My father, a salesman, was on the road all week. We had a great time playing football in the house. Until he came home for the weekend.

3. If Kim takes too long saying good-bye to her boyfriend. Her father will start flicking the porch light. Then he will come out with a flashlight.

4. Scientists are studying mummified remains. That are thousands of years old. Most of the people were killed by parasites.

5. Before I turn on the microwave oven. I have to turn off the overhead light in the kitchen. Otherwise the fuse blows.

-ing and to Fragments

When an -ing word appears at or near the start of a word group, a fragment may result. Such fragments often lack a subject and part of the verb. In the items below, underline the word groups that contain -ing words. Each is a fragment.

1. Ellen walked all over the neighborhood yesterday. Trying to find her dog Bo. Several people claimed they had seen him only hours before.
2. We sat back to watch the movie. Not expecting anything special. To our surprise, we clapped, cheered, and cried for the next two hours.
3. I telephoned the balloon store. It being the day before our wedding anniversary. I knew my wife would be surprised to receive a dozen heart-shaped balloons.

has no subject so it is not a sentence

People sometimes write -ing fragments because they think that the subject of one sentence will work for the next word group as well. Thus, in item 1 the writer thinks that the subject Ellen in the opening sentence will also serve as the subject for Trying to find her dog Bo. But the subject must actually be in the same sentence.

How to Correct -ing Fragments

- 1 Attach the fragment to the sentence that comes before it or the sentence that comes after it, whichever makes sense. Item 1 could read: "Ellen walked all over the neighborhood yesterday trying to find her dog Bo."
- 2 Add a subject and change the -ing verb part to the correct form of the verb. Item 2 could read: "We didn't expect anything special."
- 3 Change being to the correct form of the verb be (am, are, is, was, were). Item 3 could read: "It was the day before our wedding anniversary."

How to Correct to Fragments

When to appears at or near the start of a word group, a fragment sometimes results:

- ✗ At the Chinese restaurant, Tim used chopsticks. To impress his date. He spent one hour eating a small bowl of rice.

The second word group is a fragment and can be corrected by adding it to the preceding sentence:

- ✗ At the Chinese restaurant, Tim used chopsticks to impress his date.

Activity 1

Underline the -ing fragment in each of the following items. Then correct the item by using the method described in parentheses.

- Example Stepping hard on the accelerator. Stan tried to beat the truck to the intersection. He lost by a hood.
(Add the fragment to the sentence that comes after it.)
Stepping hard on the accelerator, Stan tried to beat the truck to the intersection.

1. Marble-sized hailstones fell from the sky. Flattening the young plants in the cornfield. A year's work was lost in an hour.
(Add the fragment to the preceding sentence.)

2. Fire trucks raced wildly through the town, their sirens blaring. Coming to a stop at my house. I was only burning a pile of leaves.
(Correct the fragment by adding the subject they and changing coming to the proper form of the verb, came.)

3. My phone doesn't ring. Instead, a light on it blinks. The reason for this being that I am partially deaf.
(Correct the fragment by changing being to the proper form of the verb, is.)

Activity 2

Underline the -ing or to fragment in each item. Then rewrite each item, correcting the fragment by using one of the three methods described above.

1. Looking at the worm on the table. Shelby groaned. She knew she wouldn't like what the biology teacher said next.

2. I put a box of baking soda in the freezer. To get rid of the musty smell. However, my ice cubes still taste like old socks.

3. Staring at the clock on the far wall. I nervously began my speech. I was afraid to look at any of the people in the room.

4. Jerome sat quietly at his desk. Fantasizing about the upcoming weekend. He might meet the girl of his dreams at Saturday night's party.

5. To get to the bus station from here. You have to walk two blocks out of your way. The sidewalk is torn up because of construction work.

* Added-Detail Fragments

Added-detail fragments lack a subject and a verb. They often begin with one of the following words:

also especially except for example like including such as

Underline the one added-detail fragment in each of the following items:

- ① Before a race, I eat starchy foods. Such as bread and spaghetti. The carbohydrates provide quick energy.
- ② Bob is taking a night course in auto mechanics. Also, one in plumbing. He wants to save money on household repairs.
- ③ My son keeps several pets in his room. Including hamsters and mice.

* People often write added-detail fragments for much the same reason they write -ing fragments. They think the subject and verb in one sentence will serve for the next word group. But the subject and verb must be in each word group.

How to Correct Added-Detail Fragments

- ① Attach the fragment to the complete thought that precedes it. Item 1 could read: "Before a race, I eat starchy foods such as bread and spaghetti."
- ② Add a subject and a verb to the fragment to make it a complete sentence. Item 2 could read: "Bob is taking a night course in auto mechanics. Also, he is taking one in plumbing."
- ③ Insert the fragment within the preceding sentence. Item 3 could read: "My son keeps several pets, including hamsters and mice, in his room."

Activity 1 - Jump

Underline the fragment in each of the following items. Then make it a sentence by rewriting it, using the method described in parentheses.

Example My mother likes watching daytime television shows. Especially old movies and soap operas. She says that daytime television is less violent.
(Add the fragment to the preceding sentence.)

My mother likes watching daytime television shows, especially old movies and soap operas.

1. Luis works evenings in a video store. He enjoys the fringe benefits. For example, seeing the new movies first.
(Correct the fragment by adding the subject and verb he sees.)

Missing-Subject Fragments

In each item below, underline the word group in which the subject is missing:

- ① Alicia loved getting wedding presents. But hated writing thank-you notes.
- ② Mickey has orange soda and potato chips for breakfast. Then eats more junk food, like root beer and cookies, for lunch.

How to Correct Missing-Subject Fragments

- ① Attach the fragment to the preceding sentence. Item 1 could read: "Alicia loved getting wedding presents but hated writing thank-you notes."
- ② Add a subject (which can often be a pronoun standing for the subject in the preceding sentence). Item 2 could read: "Then he eats more junk food, like root beer and cookies, for lunch."

Activity

Underline the missing-subject fragment in each item. Then rewrite that part of the item needed to correct the fragment. Use one of the two methods of correction described above.

- ① Every other day, Kara runs two miles. Then does fifty sit-ups. She hasn't lost weight, but she looks trimmer and more muscular.

2. I like all kinds of fresh pizza. But refuse to eat frozen pizza. The sauce is always dried out, and the crust tastes like leather.

3. Many people are allergic to seafood. They break out in hives when they eat it. And can even have trouble breathing.

4. To distract me, the dentist tugged at a corner of my mouth. Then jabbed a needle into my gums and injected a painkiller. I hardly felt it.

5. Last semester, I took six courses. And worked part-time in a discount drugstore. Now that the term is all over, I don't know how I did it.

A Summary

A Review: How to Check for Sentence Fragments

- ① Read your paper aloud from the last sentence to the first. You will be better able to see and hear whether each word group you read is a complete thought.
- ② If you think a word group may be a fragment, ask yourself: Does this contain a subject and a verb and express a complete thought?
- ③ More specifically, be on the lookout for the most common fragments:
 - ⊙ Dependent-word fragments (starting with words like after, because, since, when, and before)
 - ⊙ -ing and to fragments (-ing and to at or near the start of a word group)
 - ⊙ Added-detail fragments (starting with words like for example, such as, also, and especially)
 - ⊙ Missing-subject fragments (a verb is present but not the subject)
